

Scavenger Hunt

Seek and find at your zoo!

I live on every continent except Antarctica and play an important role by eating insects, pollinating plants and dispersing seeds. I'm known for being a bit spooky with my evening flying habits and am often associated with vampires! I am a _____.

The Squishing of the Squash (often giant pumpkins) is one of the fall traditions here at the zoo that I love to take part in. I enjoy spearing them with my horn or stomping on them with my feet. I am a black _____.

My reddish fur looks like the color of a falling leaf, and I love hiding and napping under blankets when it's raining. My habitat at the zoo is next to another ape, the chimpanzees. I am an _____.

I live in the ocean but don't have any blubber! Instead, I stay warm during the fall and winter with all my brown hair! I hold hands with my friends and family so we don't float away from each other. I am a _____.

On sunny days I use dirt as sunscreen, but you can find me and much of my herd in Forest Hall or under our heated shelters on cold days where it's consistently 70 degrees Fahrenheit. When it snows, I occasionally enjoy a stroll through my habitat! I am an Asian _____.

I am known to be busy and during fall I work to gather and store extra branches in my underwater den to eat in the winter. I am also a mascot for Oregon State University. I am a _____.

Where I live, the snow falls all through the autumn and winter, I spend most of it hunting and preparing to hibernate. I have partial webbing on my huge feet to help me paddle through the sea, and my large paws distribute their weight so they can walk safely across thin ice on the hunt for food. I am a _____.

My fur comes in gray, and tawny colors, purrfect for sneaking around during the fall and winter for prey. I can be found in the mountains, forests, and natural areas all throughout the pacific northwest, and often I'm caught on the prowl by wildlife cameras. I am a _____.

I am one of the heaviest and warmest of my kind with many feathers and I thrive in a specific type of weather (it's a part of my name!), I fly through the sky and blend in with the clouds at all hours, which makes me unique to others of my species who hunt only in the dark of night. I am an _____.

I am an animal that loves the warmth of extra bedding and insulation and should be kept indoors on cold, wet fall days. You can find me at a family farm and I am common and safe house pet! I am small and have some HUGE front teeth and am known for being a chatterbox. I am a _____.
